The Best American Ceramic Art Exhibition of All at ClayGround, San Jose, California

In the opening reception of the afternoon, Saturday Dec. 5th, the ClayGround studio/gallery was very crowded. The exhibition has been drawing attention from both the local ceramic art community and the local Chinese community (please click Exhibition for pictures of the artworks). I plan to work on the ceramic art exhibition again in Shanghai Art Expo China next year.

Clark Edelstein was invited for the pottery wheel throw demonstration during the reception. I met Clark in Mother Earth Clay Studio about five years ago. Later on, he brought a big raku-fired lid jar to me as a personal gift which I thought should belong to a museum somewhere. In August of this year, this piece was selected and exhibited in Jingdezhen International Ceramic Art, and it has been donated to the museum in Jingdezhen.

Al Spivack Donates Three Artworks in China

Beginning in late October, California artist and collector Al Spivack and a small group of his friends visited China for a three-week tour. He had three pieces exhibited and/or donated to China. The unique part of his technique is to bond colorful glass with the surface of the ceramic glazes. Al has had a feature article published in Ceramics Monthly. Al Spivack got his first piece in the show Jingdezhen International Ceramic Art. He brought two other pieces with him and donated to Yixing Ceramic Museum and Yixing Ceramic Art Center-Yixing Ceramic Professional Association. While the group was visiting one of the ceramic art studios in Yixing, Al Spivack got interviewed by a news reporter from one of the Chinese news mediums.
