Note from the editor

Last September, I participated in Zibo Wood Firing Festival in China and International Ceramic Art Education and Exchange Symposium in Tokyo, Japan. From October 6th to 9th, together with two Chinese artists, I participated in Ceramics Annual of American. I would like to share some pictures with everyone.

Zibo International Wood-firing Festival, China, September 1-8, 2011

In 2005, the Korean style claiming kiln of three chambers was built in the Taishan Ceramic Factory of Zibo Shandong province by South Korea artist Mr. Yongmoon Kim and his team, sponsored by the local Chinese artists and the government. Lee Middleman, the former chairman of ACGA (Association of Clay and Glass Artists of California) has participated in the event a few times and became a key person who supported this event. There were over 40 artists from Korea, Turkey, Japan and some other countries.

It is hosted by Tokyo University of the Arts, a few groups of teachers and students from China, Korea, the United States, and some other countries. Every participant was excited by Anagama kiln firing. We all appreciate professor Shimada and his Japanese faculty and student teams for their hard work to make this possible.

I have invited the two Chinese artists Zhenhua Jin and Ming Zhang to come over for the event. Both of them graduated from Tsinghua University, one of the best art schools in China. A few large ceramic artworks were shipped directly from Beijing to the exhibition site-Fort Mason, San Francisco. Both of them got some pieces sold during the event. The catalog is $25 (BK 023) each available at our website, please click Books
